1

REDISCOVER CARD GAMES

Play an old fashioned card game like Go Fish and Old Maid.

Cards always make good building materials. Create card castles and buildings and see how high you can go.

2

INDOOR CAMPOUT

Pull out the sheets and blankets to create a makeshift fort or tent in the living room. Make microwave or oven S'mores. Then unroll the sleeping bags and grab a flashlight for campsite story time.

3

BAKE TOGETHER

Who wouldn't like a batch of cookies or a sweet treat? Get in the kitchen to create an old family recipe or make a new one.

Cooking together strengthens the relationship with your child as well as builds on their math and reading skills.

4

CREATE A MASTERPIECE

Pull out the paint and brushes or the coloring books and create a work of art. It can be fun to sit down and just color with your kids. All you really need is a sheet of paper and a little imagination.

5

KARAOE ANYONE?

Turn on the the radio or your favorite station on Pandora then sign along to your favorite tunes. Showcase your theatrical style with a makeshift stage or created dance moves.

6

GET CRAFTY

Using items you find around the house, create crafts and DIY projects. With the help of Pinterest and Google anyone can crafty and create something you'd be proud to show off.

7

MOVIE NIGHT

Pop some popcorn and hot chocolate, then sit down as a family to watch a movie together.

8

GAME NIGHT

From traditional board games to simple fun like Simon Says, it's fun to play as a family. You can stay indoors when it's cold or go outdoors for more active games like tag, soccer, or football.
